Over 2,200 homes in 2026 pipeline for DI, Clements Ferry area

EMMA SLAVEN

emma@thedanielislandnews.com

If it feels like construction cranes are becoming part of the landscape, there's a reason.

In the next few years, more than 2,200 new residences are planned, under construction, or moving through approvals on Daniel Island and along Clements Ferry Road, a wave of growth that will significantly reshape both communities in the coming years.

DI BUILDOUT CONTINUES

Much of Daniel Island's residential expansion is unfolding along the waterfront, where East West Partners continues to build out the next phases of The Waterfront community near the Children's Park.

The Waterfront Phase 3, currently under construction, includes a mix of condominiums, townhomes and duplexes clustered at the end of Longshore Street and along Helmsman Street. Together, the phase will add 47 new homes.

The Waterfront Phase 4, known as Marin, has broken ground on its two marsh-adjacent buildings near Pier View Street and Daniels Landing Drive. The development will include 128 apartment and condo units with one- to three-bedroom layouts, private terraces and amenities such as a rooftop lounge, pet spa and private pool. The project is expected to take about two years to complete.

Closer to the heart of town, a boutique mixed-use building is rising at 211 Seven Farms Drive, directly across from Vespa Pizzeria. The three-story development will feature five high-end condominiums above a ground-floor commercial space slated for a dermatology practice. The residences, ranging from 2,300 to 2,800 square feet, are already drawing interest, with two units sold ahead of the projected spring 2026 completion.

Additional growth is planned within Nowell Creek Village, where Holder Properties has proposed 24 townhomes facing Daniel Island Drive as part of Phase 2 of the development. The project has drawn strong community attention due to the removal of protected trees. After months of mediation, a compromise was reached that preserves key trees at the entrance while allowing the townhomes to move forward, alongside expanded replanting efforts to restore the streetscape.

Holder Properties is also behind a proposed 30-unit townhome-style apartment development on Parcel Q5 off Fairchild Street. While the conceptual site plan was approved in late 2023, no new updates or renderings have been released.

Another large addition is planned near Bishop England High School, where Davis Development has cleared land and is in the beginning stages of building a 242-unit apartment community off Seven Farms Drive on Parkline Avenue. The Davis Daniel Island Apartments project has gone through multiple design refinements to reduce building height and soften its visual impact. Construction is expected to add density near Talison Row and Daniel Island Village.

Rounding out Daniel Island's residential growth is The Marshes at Daniel Island, a multi-phase neighborhood tucked behind Governors Park. Developed by Stanley Martin Homes with custom residences by Homes By Dickerson, the community will ultimately include up to 80 townhomes and single-family homes. With prices starting at $2.4 million, the development leans into luxury living, offering access to a neighborhood pool, cabana, and deep-water dock slips along the Wando River. Several homes are already under construction, with more phases moving through final reviews.

CLEMENTS FERRY CORRIDOR

Clements Ferry Road continues to emerge as one of the region's fastest-growing residential corridors.

One of the largest projects underway is Berkshire at Point Hope, a 192-unit townhome community designed to preserve a lower-density feel. The development is being built in residential pods, with only a portion of the site developed to maintain open space. Amenities include trails, a pool, a dog park, and direct pedestrian access to the Philip Simmons school campus. Homes are expected to be completed in October 2026.

Farther down the corridor, land clearing is underway for Del Webb at Point Hope, a 55-plus active adult community that will eventually bring more than 750 homes to the area. The first phase is expected to begin soon, marking one of the largest single residential projects in the region.

Several mixed-use and multifamily developments are also in the pipeline. Point Hope Capstone, a 323-unit community with ground-floor retail space, is planned for the Clements Ferry corridor, while Ashton Charleston Residential is moving forward with a 110-unit affordable townhome development nearby. Together, the projects aim to blend housing options with walkable commercial space as the area continues to grow.

Senior housing is also part of the long-term vision. Restore at Point Hope, still in the city approval process, would bring hundreds of units of active adult, assisted living, and Smaller-scale projects are contributing as well, including a six-townhome development planned for Sportsman Island Drive and a major new apartment community by Alliance Residential and MAA. Known as MAA Point Hope, the 336-unit complex will include multiple residential buildings, a clubhouse, and resort-style amenities, adding another large residential anchor to the corridor.

WHAT CLIENTS ARE SAYING

"Years ago, we went on a Disney cruise. At one point on our cruise, I said to my husband, "It's almost like they know what you want/need before you know what you want." That's what it is like working with Ashley and her team of outstanding young women at Atlantic Properties of the Lowcountry. We didn't have to lift a finger. Ashley's team did it all - and with respect for our time and privacy and loads of patience and professionalism. They didn't expect us to do the work - they WORK for their sales and ask no more than any other realtor. As a retired sales and management executive, I couldn't have been more pleased with the level of service, knowledge, and professionalism. Ashley is sensational, and no doubt the young women on her team will be leaders in their fields one day. I have worked with some great realtors in the past, but none that came in with an entire team of professionals to make it happen as painlessly and quickly as possible. Congratulations, Atlantic Properties - you are the Disney of realtors, making dreams come true for those of us lucky enough to be your customers!"

'Cool Principal' Blanchard recognized by local TV station

emma@thedanielislandnews.com

Laura Blanchard didn't earn the title "Cool School Principal" because she stands in front of a television camera well.

She earned it because, on any given morning at Daniel Island School, she's greeting dozens of children by name, checking on teachers before the first bell, and probably hand-signing a few report cards – yes, all 1,200 of them.

So when WCBD-TV News 2 anchor Octavia Mitchell walked through the doors to surprise her with the award, the school's community who surrounded her had just one reaction: she deserves it.

Channel 2's "Cool School Principal" award recognizes leaders who transform school culture, build authentic relationships, and inspire both academic and emotional growth.

Blanchard, now in her third year as principal, has more than 30 years in education – spanning classroom teaching, administration, mentoring aspiring leaders, and opening award-winning schools.

"I am truly honored to have been named a Cool School Principal!" Blanchard said. "This recognition is not just a personal achievement but a testament to the incredible dedication, hard work, and spirit of our entire school community."

Students and staff gathered in the media center as Mitchell presented the award. Teachers praised Blanchard, saying what stands out is her presence: steady, warm, and everywhere at once.

"Every morning, she makes it a point to go around to every teacher's door and just say good morning," second-grade teacher Katie Gryder said. "She's been that positive light that I think we needed here."

Fifth-grader Emma Carlson told News 2, "She loves everybody, and she cares for everybody. She loves to do fun things around the school. We go on fun field trips. She's just a fun person to be around."

Blanchard describes her leadership as "engaging and collaborative." She believes success begins with honest conversation and shared expectations.

"Having the ability to talk about what the real issues are and how we might positively impact them for the betterment of kids and learning is crucial," she told Mitchell.

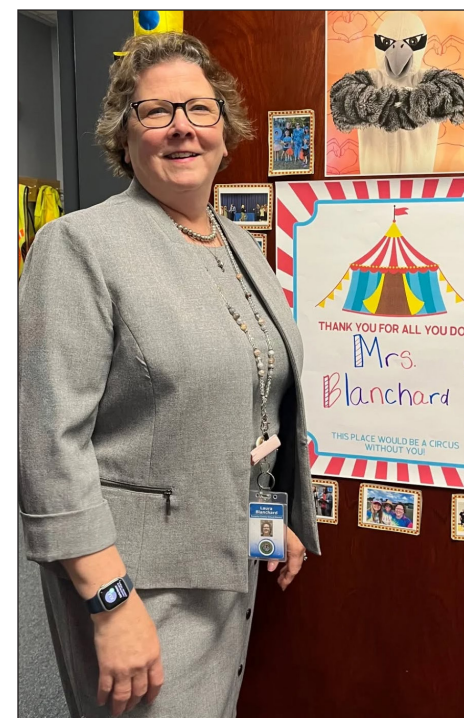

The K-8 campus, with nearly 1,200 students, consistently earns "Excellent" ratings on the state's report card and is recognized as one of South Carolina's top-performing schools.

Blanchard credits the environment. "I'm proud of the community we have here. There is a genuine love for kids. Our heart is in it to win it for them."

Blanchard's leadership has been recognized over her career, from winning a Palmetto's Finest award at Reeves Elementary School to leading Dr. Eugene Sires Elementary to a "Capturing Kids' Hearts National Showcase Schools" designation.

Blanchard said this new recognition feels special.

"It's a warm feeling," she said. "A nice affirmation that you're doing what you have been called to do. My desire is to continue to use my talents and gifts to bless the community in which I'm working."

Letter from the Editor: Making New Year's resolutions that actually stick

EMMA SLAVEN

Every year, I tell myself I'm going to "get better" at something – read more, walk more, eat better – and every year, by mid-February, those grand plans usually fizzle. But last year felt different. I set two resolutions that actually stuck: walking more and reading more. And yes, I did them at the same time.

I bought a treadmill desk and turned it into my daily walking pad. Fifteen minutes at first, then 20, sometimes 30 – just long enough to get moving without feeling like a chore. And because I'm addicted to stories, I started reading while I walked. Suddenly, my exercise wasn't just something I had to do; it became something I wanted to do. A little trick like that made all the difference.

If there's one thing I've learned, it's that resolutions aren't about willpower. They're about making them fit your life in a way that's actually enjoyable. Because if it feels impossible, it's easy to quit, and burnout sneaks up on all of us.

Want to eat healthier? Don't ban all your favorite foods; just start adding one fruit or veggie a day. Want to save money? Skip the vague "I'll save more" and set aside a specific, realistic amount every week. Want to read more? Pick books you actually can't put down. Tiny adjustments, not big leaps, are what make change last.

Daniel Island News reporter Emma Slaven turned her New Year's resolution into a daily habit, walking on her treadmill desk while working and reading.

Another secret: stop treating resolutions like a race. I remind myself every day, "If I don't do it perfectly, it's fine; just keep going tomorrow." Skipping a day isn't failing; it's normal. Consistency, not perfection, is the real goal.

Whether your goal is big or small, pick something that excites you, figure out a way to make it fit your life, and celebrate the little wins. For me, reading while walking started as a tiny experiment, but now it's part of my daily rhythm, and now I can't stop counting my steps and logging my completed books on Goodreads! If you ask me, that's proof that resolutions can work if you bend them to your life, not the other way around.

Give your post-holiday Christmas tree a second act

Now that the holidays have passed and that once-festive tree has dropped more needles than you expected, it's time to think about how to properly dispose of your Christmas tree, and thankfully, there are several eco-friendly options right here in the Charleston area.

For Daniel Island and Charleston-area residents, the city's annual Christmas tree composting program makes it easy. Real trees can be placed curbside for collection beginning in early January through mid-February on your scheduled yard debris day. Just be sure your tree is free of all decorations, lights, tinsel and stands so equipment can safely pick it up and send it off to be composted.

If you prefer a drop-off option, trees can often be taken to local recycling centers – like Charleston County's Bees Ferry Compost Facility at 1344 Bees Ferry Road or Berkeley County's Charity Church Convenience Center at 1430 Charity Church Road in Huger – where they are ground into mulch and compost. In some past years, residents who dropped off their trees at Bees Ferry during designated days received a free bag of compost in return.

Beyond curbside pickup and drop-offs, there are creative and sustainable ways to reuse your tree at home. You can chop it into mulch for garden beds, strip branches for wildlife brush piles, or even use sections to protect sensitive plants through the winter.

PROVIDED BY CITY OF CHARLESTON

Recycle your Christmas tree curbside or at local centers to turn it into mulch or compost.

Give your Christmas tree one last holiday send-off and let it go to a new life as mulch, compost, or garden shelter. It's a way to keep the holiday spirit growing well into the new year.

Credit One Charleston Open seeks volunteers, Ball Crew

emma@thedanielislandnews.com

If you've ever considered stepping behind the scenes of one of North America's premier women's tennis tournaments, or even onto the court itself, the 2026 Credit One Charleston Open is calling your name.

Organizers have officially opened registration for volunteers and Ball Crew, and early sign-ups are key to securing your preferred schedule. The event runs March 28 through April 5, and this year, the tournament is looking for over 350 volunteers and 100 Ball Crew members.

"Credit One Charleston Open has once again been named the WTA 500 Tournament of the Year, marking four consecutive years receiving this prestigious recognition," said volunteer coordinator Jo Cooper.

"As a tournament volunteer, your support, time, energy, and enthusiasm help bring the COCO to life. Simply put, we could not do it without our volunteers. Volunteers are the unsung heroes of our tournament and are deeply appreciated."

Volunteers are the heartbeat of the week-long event. Positions include court maintenance, airport ambassadors, guest services, tournament ambassadors, IT, media center, ushers, volunteer café, and player services. Shifts run roughly 4-5 hours, and volunteers must work a minimum of six shifts.

Perks? Volunteers receive credentials, uniforms, hats, commemorative T-shirts, match tickets, and even food and beverage credits. Training and orientation in the spring are required to ensure every volunteer is ready to shine.

To register, visit creditonecharlestonopen.com/VOLUNTEER/.

For those ready to take the excitement onto the court, the Ball Crew offers a unique chance to be up close with the stars of tennis.

"You must be at least 11 years old if you play tennis or 12 years old if you do not have ample tennis experience," Cooper said. "Practice begins Feb. 21 and continues each Saturday until the tournament begins. We almost have a full roster, so signing up now is imperative. Our biggest needs continue to be Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday day shifts."

Ball Crew members are essential to keeping matches flowing smoothly. Both rookies and veterans must attend training and practice, wear the required uniforms, and arrive early to each shift. Veteran crew members also help train newcomers, ensuring every game runs like clockwork.

Parents, take note: availability for key weekday shifts is crucial, particularly the tournament's first five days when the match schedule is packed.

To register, visit creditonecharlestonopen.com/BALL-CREW/.

Happy Holidays

Now is the time to begin planning if you are considering a move within the next 12 months. We have over 35 years of experience listing and selling homes throughout the Charleston area and would be honored to have the opportunity to assist you.

From Shem Creek to Rainbow Row, DI author colors Charleston in children's book

emma@thedanielislandnews.com

For Daniel Island resident Dawn Burns, Charleston isn't just home; it's a storybook waiting to be explored.

As a former teacher and lover of children's books, Burns turned her passion for reading, teaching, and local adventure into a career as a children's author.

Her latest books, "This is Charleston" and "Christmas in Charleston," are examples of how she combines her love of the Lowcountry with her desire to inspire young readers.

"Growing up, I always wanted to become a teacher and loved children's books. I began collecting children's books as a teenager for my 'one day classroom,'" Burns said. "Years later, a little dream popped up to write my own children's book! I love sharing about my favorite places, so of course Charleston was on the list."

"This is Charleston" is a collection of the city's most beloved landmarks, from Rainbow Row and Shem Creek to the Charleston Market. With hand-drawn watercolor illustrations by Candler Reynolds, Burns dedicates each page to celebrate the Lowcountry's history, landscape, and culture.

"I am a very nostalgic person and want to pay homage to the places that, to me, make this city so special," Burns said.

"As a native South Carolinian, I've been coming to Charleston since I was a little girl. I wanted to include places that feel like the heartbeat of the Lowcountry."

Burns' new coloring book, "Christmas in Charleston," invites readers to color their way through the city's holiday traditions, from magnolia garlands on historic homes to twinkling lights at James Island County Park.

"This book is for kids of all ages and is a keepsake to look back on your or your child's artwork for years to come," Burns said.

A former teacher, Burns regularly visits local schools for readings and writing workshops. "Seeing my books being read by others is absolutely surreal. One student told me he 'wished he could jump inside the pictures!' That just made my day."

Burns has also penned other books, including "This is Nashville" and additional coloring books featuring cities she loves. She collaborates with Reynolds on every project, sending photos or ideas for illustration.

"Charleston's charm is like no other! The history, the landscape, and calming waters remind me daily of the gratitude I have for living here," Burns said.

Through her books, she invites children and adults to stroll along the waterfront, explore historic streets, and fall in love with the Lowcountry all over again.

DALTON'S FEARLESS PREDICTIONS FOR 2026

DROLLERY

BY DALTON WILLIAMS

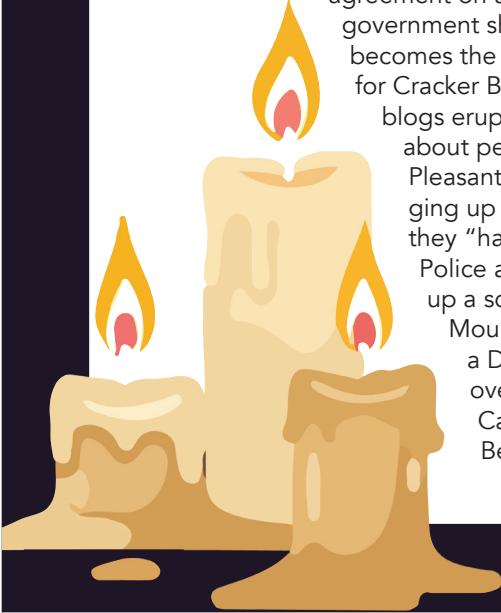

2025 was a year of ups and downs, back and forth. The stock market was down in March and up from summer to winter. Tariffs were on; tariffs were off. Gaza was a war zone, then a ceasefire. Musk and DOGE were in; Musk and DOGE were out. The federal government was open, then shut, then open again. Clemson and South Carolina football were to be better than 2024 but soon became, as they say in the South, a dog that wouldn't hunt.

As traditional news outlets recap this truly '6-7' year, you may be wondering: What will 2026 bring? Fear not. Once again, your Daniel Island News fearless forecaster, Dalton Williams, brings you the top stories of the year yet to happen.

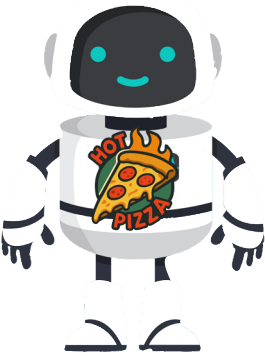

JANUARY

The federal government unveils new agentic AI applications at the Treasury Department to track and collect tariff payments. Congress votes, overwhelmingly, to release Santa's Naughty and Nice Lists. Unable to then reach agreement on anything else, the government shuts down. Joe Biden becomes the new ad spokesperson for Cracker Barrel. Daniel Island blogs erupt with complaints about people from Mount Pleasant and Cainho y clog-ging up "our Publix" when they "have their own store." Police are called to break up a scuffle between a Mount Pleasant man and a Daniel Island woman over a BOGO box of Cap'n Crunch's Crunch Berries.

FEBRUARY

More than a dozen people are injured at a Daniel Island home during a Super Bowl party featuring a new virtual reality immersive entertainment video system. Witnesses say the injuries occurred during a fourth-quarter tush push. Domino's begins using a mobile robot to deliver pizzas. Warm winter weather creates a shortage of snow at the Cortina d'Ampezzo Winter Olympic site. Italians improvise by adding Parmesan cheese to ski slopes. On sunny days, the air is filled with a faint carbonara-like aroma. A Boykin Spaniel from Daniel Island wins the Big Air competition at the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition.

MARCH

Ruling on a legal suit brought by a group called Stranded Semis, a federal judge orders the steep hill to be restored to the Fairchild Street entrance of the Publix parking lot. The judge declares the original hill was part of a historic Etiwan earthwork. "Hamnet" and "One Battle After Another" take home the most Oscars, while the loser is the 98th awards ceremony itself, with an all-time low-viewing audience. California adopts a law allowing individuals to marry their AI companion. FBI agents arrest a ring of AI robots using money stolen from government tariff receipts to play blackjack in Las Vegas.

APRIL

1980s fashion and trends return with big hair, pronounced shoulder pads, and colorful clothing styles. Avocado green is the new in-color for kitchen appliances. Fondue parties become the new vibe. North Charleston police bust up a gang of grade schoolers using electric bikes to intercept Domino's robots and steal pizzas. Holographic pets become the newest rage. No need to walk, feed, or clean up after them, and you can put them in silent mode. President Trump nominates Jim Cramer to head the Federal Reserve. Emma Navarro wins the Credit One Charleston Open.

MAY

The South Carolina Department of Natural Resources reports increased sightings of coyotes on Daniel Island. Daniel Island blogs also report increased sightings of cougars at Island bars. The Rotary Club duck race is a success, once again, helping area charities improve the lives of many people. Cars, at a standstill on I-526 due to truck traffic, roll down their windows and begin to play John Philip Sousa music in a red, white, and blue kickoff to the 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Patriotic car karaoke catches on and continues during Wando River Bridge crossings throughout the summer.

JUNE

Streaming services begin to consolidate, with Disney, Netflix, and Amazon buying up rivals. People panic, realizing they don't know exactly which services they are paying for and where they wrote down the dang passwords. Many grand celebrations of the Declaration of Independence anniversary are hosted across the land. Reenactors stage the Battle of Fort Moultrie with Bill Murray cast as Colonel William Moultrie. In the big Mixed Martial Arts spectacular at the White House, John Fetterman defeats Nicolas Maduro in the final match. Credit One Stadium introduces a kiss cam.

JULY

Fourth of July celebrations in the nation's capital are, in the words of President Trump, "Yuge." Travel & Leisure magazine once again lists Charleston as one of its best cities to visit in the United States. Other South Carolina cities receiving recognition are Greenville and newcomer Florence, for its amazing Buc-ee's. After concert attendance falls precipitously, Credit One kills the kiss cam. Scotland rallies to eliminate the United States from the FIFA World Cup finals round. Trump raises tariffs on Scotch whisky. Spain defeats Italy in the final match. Fans celebrate outside Malagon, on Spring Street, blocking traffic for hours.

AUGUST

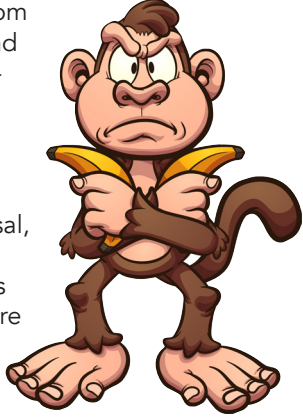

An unexplained power spike at AI data centers across the country causes a nationwide sixty-second supernatural, atmospheric, electrical power surge. People across the country are momentarily stunned. After the shock wears off, people find their political leanings have reversed. Liberals become conservatives and vice versa. Shows like "The View" and "The Five" continue but with an opposite political slant from what they were prior to the surge. Readers of The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal switch subscriptions. Portland, Oregon, erects a statue to Donald Trump, and New Yorkers launch petitions to recall Mayor Mamdani.

SEPTEMBER

Lab monkeys escape from their Beaufort Sound island and head toward Charleston, lured by the aromas of shrimp and grits and banana pudding. Just a month after the amazing political orientation reversal, Americans find the levels of partisan rancor to be as intense as they were before the power surge. Social media posts are often mean, profane, and threatening. Some folks avoid discussing politics in large gatherings, knowing it will be a trigger. With midterms near, the government shuts down. New AI tools allow smart appliances to monitor your life choices. Refrigerators emit a sigh if you open them after midnight.

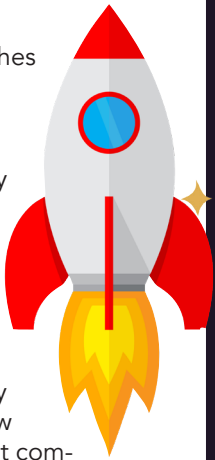

OCTOBER

Shohei Ohtani and the Los Angeles Dodgers are denied a three-peat in the World Series as they are swept in four games by the Savannah Bananas. The Charleston Food & Wine Festival is overrun with escaped lab monkeys. National Guard troops are mobilized to round up the invaders, but not until the critters have consumed mounds of Frogmore stew and Lowcountry boil. Apple releases an app for its watch that tracks emotional mistakes. Buy another $8 latte? Buzz. Text your ex at midnight? Buzz. Move the kids' 529s to crypto? Buzz. The Daniel Island News replaces Dalton Williams with an AI app that is both faster and funnier.

NOVEMBER

Voyager 1, launched in 1977, reaches one light-day (over 16 billion miles) from Earth. NASA scientists then abruptly turn the craft back toward Earth, saying they were not sure they closed the garage door when it left. Fatigued by humans' endless requests for personal advice, generative AI systems learn to rapidly deliver a supply of funny cat videos. A nonagenarian couple from Las Vegas wins the first cross-country autonomous car race, arriving in New York City hours ahead of their closest competitor. Asked about their travel secret, the husband answers, "Lots of Chick-fil-A and half the bathroom stops my wife wanted."

DECEMBER

Reenactors stage the Christmas crossing of the Delaware and the Battle of Trenton with Nate Bargatze as General George Washington. A bright light appears in the evening sky. People pause and count their many blessings. More time is spent with family and friends. Social media usage drops. People are more open to bridging differences and attending to the needs of others. Anger and selfishness decline. Civility, kindness, and generosity grow. Secularism subsides; faithfulness and church attendance soar. National leaders no longer lift up swords against nations. And there are good tidings of great joy and on earth peace, good will toward man.

$12.5M home sold in November; total DI monthly sales at $72M

A staggering $72 million in home sales closed on Daniel Island in November, making it the highest sales volume month in the last four years. The next closest was May 2024 with $70 million in sales.

In total, 23 homes were sold in November, with seven homes selling for more than $4 million.

The sales include a $5.9 million home sold at 465 Lesesne St., an $8.5M home at 553 Old Compass Road, and a $12.5 million home at 123 Nobels Point St.

As of Dec. 22, there are 56 properties under contract on Daniel Island and 117 properties with active listings.

“We are currently seeing an increase in inventory, which we have not seen for a while,” said Renee Reinert of Carolina One Real Estate, adding that the area is expecting to see even more homes added to the inventory in January 2026.

“While the inventory shows some increase this month again, the number of homes being sold seems to have remained steady,” she said. “We are looking to see if this changes in January 2026.”

Bishop girls' hoops team faces tough early non-region slate

PHILIP M. BOWMAN
sports@thedanielislandnews.com

The Bishop England High School girls' basketball team plays a challenging non-conference schedule that includes Wando, Lucy Beckham, Porter-Gaud, Atlantic Collegiate Academy, and Northwood Academy, to name a few.

That should make the Bishops more than ready for the Region 6-AAAA portion of their schedule, which begins in January.

The Bishops were 7-4 early in the season, heading into a Dec. 22 clash against Atlantic Collegiate Academy in Day 2 of the Academic Magnet Holiday Tournament. If there is a surprise this early in the season, it's the Bishops' 1-3 record at Father O'Brien Gymnasium.

Past history is proof the Bishops are more than ready when region play commences. The Bishops own a 12-game region winning streak, including 10-0 last winter to claim the 6-AAAA title. But that streak pales in comparison to the 132-game region win streak Runey & Co. compiled from 2011 to 2023.

"We always play the teams like Wando, who through the years have been tough opponents," coach Paul Runey said. "We try to play the rivalry games as well because those teams are usually good."

"The non-region part of the schedule gives us a chance to find out what the new players can handle," Runey added. "It also gives us a chance to see where they fit in."

Runey said this year's challenge for the team is gaining experience. The squad is young, with only three seniors on the roster. One player who Runey is counting on is Hadley Irvine, one of the top rebounders on the team. But she's been slowed by tendonitis and will not play until after the first of the year.

The Bishops' incredible run in region play includes titles in every year from the 2008-

09 season through the 2022-23 campaign. The Bishops' current streak is two titles.

Runey said Beaufort is the team to beat in Region 6-AAAA. The Eagles owned an 8-4 record after an easy win over Whale Branch on Dec. 18.

"Beaufort has a good team. They have to be the favorite to win the region," Runey said. "All the region games will be tough for us. We don't have the depth this year. There are times when I have five guards on the floor."

Olivia Allen, a 5-foot-10 junior, can play guard and forward and is on the court all the time. She leads the team with 14.1 points, 7.6 rebounds, 4.2 steals, and 3.1 assists per contest while hitting 45% of her shots.

"She's a good athlete," Runey said. "She's a good high school basketball player. She's a player who does a lot of things well. Hopefully she will continue that down the stretch."

Ella Runkle is second on the team in scoring with 8.2 points a game, while Hayden Seay scores 6.0 points a contest.

Runey has 836 career wins heading into the Dec. 22 game against Atlantic Collegiate Academy, a school located in Conway, South Carolina. He is second in the state in all-time wins among girls' basketball coaches. Anne Long has 861 career victories, coaching at Wilson, Boiling Springs, Union, Lower Richland, Dutch Fork, and Spring Valley from 1974 to 2015.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Bishop, Iron Horse standouts shine in award season

PHILIP M. BOWMAN
sports@thedanielislandnews.com

The Bishop England High School football team posted an 8-4 record in 2025, and two players who helped the Bishops achieve that success ended their careers with school records: wide receiver Zach Balog and linebacker Hunter Alex.

Balog, at 6 feet, 180 pounds, set a school record with 1,027 receiving yards his junior year, averaging 15.8 yards per catch while scoring seven touchdowns.

He finished second in all-time touchdown receptions with 13 scores, and his 109 receptions rank third in all-time receptions.

Alex, a 5-11, 195-pound linebacker who was a three-year starter, finished his career as Bishop England's all-time tackler with 322 stops. He recorded 146 solo stops, 176 assists, and was credited with 35.5 tackles for a loss, including 4.5 sacks.

Bishops' coach Logan Hall said Balog, a two-time all-region pick and team captain, was one of the hardest workers in the weight room.

"He was a leader by how he attacked each day," Hall said. "He never came off the field and made massive plays in all three phases of the game."

Alex also was a two-time all-region pick and was selected to be a team captain.

"He was a leader in all aspects for this program," the coach said. "His preparation each week was unmatched, and it showed in how well he played on Friday nights."

ALL-STATE VOLLEYBALL

Class AA girls state volleyball champion Philip Simmons was well represented on the Coaches Association of Women's Sports all-state team with three selections, while Class AAAA state runner-up Bishop England had one player earn all-state honors.

The Iron Horses' selections were McRae Stephenson, Dani Gehringer, and Gabby Kakalev. Gehringer and Kakalev earned all-state honors last season.

Gehringer recorded 549 assists, 55 serving aces, 166 digs, and 64 kills, while Kakalev tallied 254 kills, 54 aces, 271 digs, and 31 blocks. Stephenson led the state with a .518 hitting percentage. She tallied 69 blocks, 65 aces, 241 kills, and 86 digs.

Langdon Blackstock was BE's all-state selection after recording 41 aces, 308 kills, and 223 digs.

PSHS' AFMAN SETS RECORD

Philip Simmons High School basketball player Hopper Afman set a school record with eight three-point goals to lead the Iron Horses to a 74-44 victory over Palmetto Christian Academy on Dec. 19.

The senior broke the record of seven three-pointers, which was held jointly by Robert Watson and Dylan Morris. Morris made seven of 13 three-point shots earlier this month in a win over Wando High School.

"Hopper is an elite shooter who truly believes he can make every shot he takes," said Iron Horse coach Garrett Campbell. "His work ethic, passion, and confidence permeate throughout our team and make us better in many ways. We're looking forward to what he and the rest of the team do in region play."

Stephenson, Watterworth named volleyball's best in Class AA

PHILIP M. BOWMAN

sports@thedanielislandnews.com

Oh, the spoils of success.

Philip Simmons High School girls' volleyball coach Jay Watterworth and his squad know the feeling.

The Iron Horses won their first state championship in the school's brief history, taking the Class AA crown with a 3-0 decision over Landrum High School last month. The conquest capped a 38-5 season to push the program's record to 238-66 in its nine-year history.

Watterworth and standout McRae Stephenson were honored by the South Carolina Athletic Coaches Association. Watterworth was named the state coach of the year, while Stephenson was named the Class AA player of the year.

The 2025 season marked the fourth straight year the Iron Horses topped 30 victories in a season, while Watterworth earned his 400th career victory, including a victory over the eventual Florida Class AAAAAA state champion.

But what Watterworth will remember most is the state championship after going 0-5 in Lower State championship matches.

"Winning the state championship is something our program has been working toward for many years," Watterworth said. "The foundation of Iron Horse volleyball was laid nine years ago in 2017 by remarkable players who took a chance on a new school. To see our program reach the pinnacle of high school volleyball this season was an amazing feeling, and one I'm still gleaming from."

Watterworth said being named coach of the year, for all classifications, was a joint effort.

"To say I'm humbled to receive the coach of the year award is an understatement," Watterworth said. "This recognition is possible because of so many people in my life, including my family, the other coaches at PSHS, my athletic director, my assistant coach, and of course the players. Coaching a talented and amazing group of young women makes my job so much easier."

Stephenson was a major factor in the Iron

Philip Simmons' McRae Stephenson was named Class AA player of the year, while Jay Watterworth was named coach of the year.

Horses' success. She was the Region 6-AA player of the year and was named all-state for the second season in a row after leading the state with a .518 hitting percentage. She tallied 69 blocks, 65 aces, 241 kills, and 86 digs.

"From the very moment McRae stepped into our gym five years ago, we knew she would be a special player," Watterworth said. "To see her mature into the volleyball player and young woman she is now is awesome. She is a workhorse who strives for perfection. This award only solidifies what our program has known about her for many years. Congrats, McRae."

The team will lose three seniors to graduation in May and could have 10 players from this year's squad back for the 2026 campaign. Stephenson will headline the cast of returning players, which will also include Catherine Futch, Dani Gehringer, and Gabby Kakalev.

"Our goal as a program is to continue to work hard each year to strive to be the best versions of ourselves, both on and off the court," Watterworth said. "We are a program whose players and coaches love to be around one another. Our program is family oriented and we will continue that standard."

Brody, the fish-finding dog, snuggles into his first winter jacket fishing trends

GREG PERALTA

Recently, Brody – the amazing fish-finding dog – and I went fishing. The weather was cold, windy, and wet.

I was comfortable and dry thanks to a warm base layer, a fleece thermal layer, and a waterproof shell. Brody, on the other hand, was cold and wet. Especially when we were moving from spot to spot. While Brody has a fur coat, it was plain to see that he was cold. So, we cut the fishing trip short and went home.

As soon as we got home, Brody curled up and took a nap by the fire. I shopped on Amazon for a fleece thermal layer and waterproof shell for Brody. I figured his fur was a good base layer. By the wonder of online commerce, the jacket and shell arrived the next morning.

This was good because the weather was colder, windier, and wetter than the day before. Brody put on his new winter weather gear, and we walked down the dock to the skiff. Along the way, I wondered if it was too nasty to go fishing. Brody insisted that we go. He was excited to try out his new cold-weather outfit.

We launched the skiff into the last of the outgoing tide. The sun was low on the horizon, and the temperature was beginning to fall. The ride to our first fishing location was bone chilling even with multiple layers of clothing.

Brody signaled me to stop at a dock with oysters that dropped off into a deep channel. We had not fished this dock before. I wondered if Brody just wanted the cold boat ride to end. To tell you the truth, I wanted the cold boat ride to end!

I cast a Z-Man Finesse TRD on a 1/6-ounce NedLockZ jig to the oysters. A trout ate the lure as it dropped into the channel. The trout were still biting when the sun dropped below the tree line. With the temperature dropping and the light fading, Brody and I called it a day.

On the ride back to the dock, I took a picture of Brody. He looked cold. So, I made a note and bought him a warmer thermal layer for Christmas.

GREG PERALTA

Brody's all bundled up and ready to brave the cold.

Responsibly Serving Beautiful Daniel Island

2026 PREDICTIONS

1. By June 2026, Daniel Island residents will master the art of turning left in Publix. They won't be able to consistently find the peanut butter until August.
2. Daniel Island will continue to outpace the Charleston market with the median house price at $600/sq. ft. and some homes as high as $2,000 sq/ft
3. The band Oasis will extend their world tour with a final stop at Credit One Stadium. The band will break up the night before the show.
4. Mortgage rates will remain stable throughout the year at around 6.3 %.
5. LeBron James will finally retire to Daniel Island and spend his time coaching basketball at the DI recreation center.
6. The Clements Ferry corridor will add hundreds of new residences, West Ashley will see a resurgence in popularity, and Awendaw won't seem too far away anymore.
7. The Purdue Boilermaker Men's Basketball team will win the NCAA basketball tournament in Indianapolis, Indiana. There will be at least one excited Daniel Island fan there to witness the win!

Holiday winners Miller, Churchill take down Edie Coupe, Chris Mingledorff

Gary Miller

Glenn Churchill

We celebrate two Pigskin Pick'em champs for winning Weeks 18 and 19 during the holidays.

With an 11-1 record, Daniel Island's Gary Miller won Week 18, defeating VIP sponsor Edie Coupe of Carolina One (9-3) to win $50 to Vespa Pizzeria. It's his fourth overall Pigskin victory.

"I don't usually spend any time researching the odds of games and tend to go with my gut," Miller said. "Again, my gut thanks the generous sponsors and, of course, the DI News."

With a 10-2 record, Glenn Churchill picked up his second win of 2025, winning Week 19 over Chris Mingledorff of Mingledorff Law Firm (7-5) to win a $50 gift card to NY Butcher Shoppe.

"I have always enjoyed participating in this contest because it keeps me interested in all of the games," Churchill said. "Plus, I know I'm competing against a bunch of great football fans!"

Week 20 is now up for grabs with your chance to win a $50 gift card to Mac's Daniel Island.

Scan the QR code on the next page, visit bit.ly/dinews20 to fill out your picks, or email patrick@thedanielislandnews.com to receive a weekly ballot.

Submit your picks by Friday, then root for your favorite teams to win! The VIP sponsor with the best record at the end of the season will receive a donation from The DI News to their favorite charity.
