Clements Ferry Road is notoriously known for its high-volume traffic as of late with Phase 2 of its corridor expansion. What's not as well-known is its southernmost terminus Thomas Island, but it's projected to be a boating paradise in due time.

At the corner where Clements Ferry Road and St. Thomas Island Drive intersect on the southwest side of Daniel Island lies acres of wooded area and beyond that Clouter Creek. That's approximately where Thomas Island Marina is going to be built.

According to a May 5 report from the City of Charleston's Technical Review Committee, a 1.5 acre site plan is calling for a 110-slip private marina with parking, restroom facilities and a picnic pavilion with an amenity center and possibly a concierge service for future boaters. The project is slated to start any day now, according to owner and developer Shane Sandusky of Clouter Creek Reserve, LLC.

"We've got the marina permit; we've had that forever," Sandusky said. "We can start construction on the marina right now."

Sandusky, a defense contractor, acquired the land from the original property owners at the original purchase price dating back 20 years ago. The same chunk of land used to be the launching point of a ferry route from Thomas Island to Charlestown back in the late 1700s, according to the Daniel Island Historical Society.

The project's applicant is SeamonWhiteside and the architect has yet to be determined; however, Sandusky noted that he's been funding the engineering costs personally with local firm Applied Technology & Management for the time being.

"I've stayed on the project because I didn't want it to turn into another parking lot, it's too pretty," Sandusky

Once construction plans and designs for the restroom configuration is complete, which is a federal requirement for the permit, Sandusky can "park" the marina.

"We are looking for suitors; we're about to put it on the market," Sandusky added. "... We've done enough work that someone will come in and buy it with very little contingencies."

Sandusky noted that talks about pre-leasing or pre-selling slips is not dead in the water, but finding an investor(s) is still very much on the table, as well as the possibility of a public membership in the future.

As for the marina setup, there will be no dry stack or public boat landing on site. The geography of the land doesn't allow boat trailers access in and out of the water due to about 1,000 feet of marshland to Clouter Creek. The creek itself is nearly 1,000-feet wide, 12-15 feet deep and only 2 minutes north of the mouth of the Cooper River that opens up into the Charleston Harbor.

"It's going to be a boater's paradise," Sandusky added. Thomas Island Marina is expected to be a Lowcountry fixture by the summer of 2023.

Philip Simmons student spends birthday benefiting seniors in India

MARIE ROCHA-TYGH

marie@thedanielislandnews.com

A car, a beach vacation with friends, a big party – these are the typical desires of teens celebrating their 18th birthday.

Instead of asking his parents for any of these, Philip Simmons High School senior Devin Casper requested that his parents let him donate the money they would have used for his birthday to support people in need.

"The main reason I wanted to help others was because I saw how they needed it more than I did," Devin said. "This past year has been great for me and I just wanted to try and spread it to others."

His mother, Sheela Casper, was a little surprised he didn't want something more elaborate for the milestone birthday, but said her son has always practiced random acts of kindness. "He is always super sensitive to others. He will hold the door open for an entire crowd while we wait. He puts others before himself."

"In today's world, a small act of kindness matters. We each could do one thing today that could make a difference for someone." - Devin Casper's grandfather, Sam Verma

With the help of Devin's grandfather in India, they came up with a plan to enrich the lives of 21 residents living at a small nursing home in India by presenting them with a gift of their choosing. Retirement communities are not very common in India

"On our first visit to Daniel Island to explore the possibility of making a move to South Carolina from New Jersey, we both realized that this was a beautiful and unique community. Upon arriving at the real estate office, we met Angie Johnson and immediately felt that she was the right person to assist us in finding the perfect lot to build our new home. We found Angie to be very professional, knowledgeable, and enthusiastic about living on Daniel Island and with her guidance, we found the perfect property and are very pleased with our decision. We would highly recommend Angie and her team to anyone looking for a property or a home on Daniel Island!"

- Karen & Jim

"I would HIGHLY recommend Angie. She is wonderful and I can't imagine a better experience with anyone! She is very responsive and has an excellent team working with her. I found her to be pleasure to work with and get to know both professionally and personally. I will recommend her to all my friends moving into the area. She has extensive knowledge about Daniel Island and a keen sense of identifying a buyer's needs and wants. You would consider yourself fortunate to work with Angie and her team!"

- Sheri & Tom

"Selling real estate in today's market can be a treacherous and tedious job at times. We were so fortunate to have Angie Johnson by our side. We are convinced that without her knowledge of the market and expertise, we would have had a different outcome. She is always honest and never pushy while providing all of the facts necessary to make good, informed decisions. Her love for Daniel Island is apparent and she always wants what is best for the families and people of the Island. Every encounter was pleasurable and professional. Great attitude, easy to work with, extremely knowledgeable about the market...simply put, she gets the job done. Having dealt with other agents in the past, we found that Angie's most admirable trait was that she is more worried about the client's bottom line rather than her own. She makes every effort to make sure her clients are happy. We look forward to working with her for all of our future transactions."

'Thank you for your service' on Memorial Day and every day

As a veteran of the armed forces, I am always taken aback when a complete stranger notices my Navy ball cap and says, "Thank you for your service." This did not happen when I enlisted in the Navy, nor for many years after. Service members were not held in high esteem after the Vietnam War. The proper response when someone takes the time to say thanks is, "It was an honor and a privilege," which it most certainly was.

While my Navy career had its ups and downs, it was an overwhelmingly positive experience for which I believe I was well paid, both in salary and benefits. I was never shot at nor did I shoot at anyone else, although I was briefly in a war zone twice. Some of my fellow vets, however, paid the ultimate price for keeping our country free and many, many others suffered, and still suffer, from great trauma suffered in combat. Their sacrifices far outweigh any inconveniences I may have experienced in my nearly 29 years of service and it is for them our country should be most grateful. So please keep saying, "Thank you for your service," especially on Memorial Day.

Memorial Day is still personal for me. My dad spent World War II in the Pacific on a destroyer that endured many, many days of combat and ultimately was hit by a Japanese kamikaze which took the lives of 11 of his shipmates. My father-in-law dropped paratroopers from his C-47 over Normandy on D-Day, flying through horrific flak from German ground troops. Both survived the war and have now passed but I'll take a moment on Memorial Day to reflect upon their willingness to risk it all when our country was in great peril.

My graduating class in high school included just 74 students from our town of about 2,000. The president of our class was killed in Vietnam. Another soldier from our town whom I got to know very well while working on a summer job was killed by "friendly fire" during that conflict. His mother spent the rest of her life as an anti-war activist. I couldn't blame her. Another of my closest pals was killed in a military aircraft he was piloting just after Vietnam. I'll take a moment to remember the friends of my youth who served and were killed in service to the nation.

While we focus on the contributions and sacrifices of our military on Memorial Day, I think it is worth remembering those who serve in other arenas. Police officers have been subjected to all sorts of challenges in the past few years. A large segment of society has effectively said, "We don't want you to serve." The results have been that fewer good men and women are willing to sign up to be police officers. For those that continue to serve, the job has become even more dangerous and far too many police officers have given their lives in service to our community. A prayer of thanksgiving on Memorial Day is quite appropriate, it seems to me.

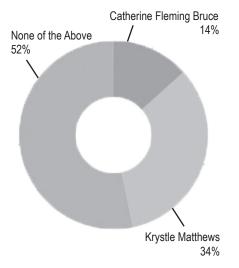

Finally, the doctors, nurses, and first responders who have worked long and stressful hours, days, months, and now years to fight the COVID-19 plague deserve a "Thank you for your service" as well. Some contracted the disease, suffered horribly, and died while treating others. Memorial Day is a good time to think about them, too.

So this Memorial Day, I suggest we broaden our remembrances to include all those who risk and give their lives for the rest of us. To them I say, "Thank you, thank you for your service."

Don R. Haven is a retired naval officer and retired high school history teacher, who lives part of the year on Daniel Island.

SUPPORT FOR LISA KERNS

Oftentimes, our most essential elected positions are the ones grabbing the fewest headlines, such as clerk of court.

I, like perhaps you, was not aware of this position's significance until I was elected to Charleston City Council and recognized this is not a position for which I want to vote blindly.

Clerk of court is central to the proper functioning of our courts and public safety and must possess an intimate knowledge of the judicial system, organizational leadership skills, and respect for government transparency and the public's safety. Lisa Kerns perfectly fits that description.

As a court reporter and member of the Berkeley County Sheriff's Office Citizen Advisory Team, Lisa understands the challenges facing our court system. For example: Docket management ensures cases are heard in a timely fashion. Sheriff Duane Lewis has endorsed Lisa because she is committed to working with our judges to effectively manage this process, thereby saving taxpayers and protecting defendants' and victims' rights.

Top-of-mind in the Daniel Island/Cainhoy area is not wanting to travel to Moncks Corner for certain issues. As a Clements Ferry resident, Lisa wants to implement online systems so residents could manage these issues regardless of location.

In South Carolina, we do not register with a party, meaning you can vote in either primary. The Berkeley County Clerk of Court race has two Republican candidates and no Democrat candidate, which means the June 14 primary will, most likely, determine who holds this office. My hope for our community is that person is Lisa Kerns.

The following incidents were taken from the City of Charleston Police Department reports within Team 5, which serves Daniel Island and parts of the Cainhoy peninsula, between May1-15.

SCREWDRIVER STABBING

On May 1, officers responded to a business located on Island Park Drive in reference to an assault. Upon arrival, Team 5 located the victim who had been stabbed with a screwdriver and suffered a severe laceration on the left side of his face.

Four witnesses provided an account of the incident. The first witness was the girlfriend of the victim and the exgirlfriend of the offender. She and the victim stopped at a gas station on Central Island Street, across the street from her residence. The victim intended to put air in his tires while the witness began to walk to her home. While walking, she observed the offender standing in a parking lot near Fairchild Street. The offender muttered something to her, then ran toward the victim and began punching him. A struggle ensued, during which the offender produced a screwdriver and slashed the victim's face.

The second witness was a citizen in the area who saw the offender approach the victim, shouting obscenities at him. He took a swing at the victim who tried to fight back. The offender charged at the victim a second time, striking the victim in the face with the blade of a screwdriver.

The third and fourth witnesses were bystanders and provided similar narratives.

After the incident, the offender fled in a white BMW toward River Landing Drive. Berkeley County EMS and the fire department responded, and the victim was transported to an area hospital for treatment.

The offender was found at his home in Mount Pleasant and was arrested and charged with aggravated assault. The case remains active.

STOLEN SUPPLIES

At 10 a.m. on May 9, an officer responded to a theft from a business on Charleston Regional Parkway. The superintendent for the job site stated that the incident occurred at a newly constructed warehouse where items were stored in a garage area. An unknown individual entered the property and stole copper wiring valued at $3,000, two generators totaling $3,000, and a backpack blower worth $500. The property had not been secured and no surveillance video was available.

DRIVING UNDER SUSPENSION

An officer was dispatched to I-526 near Clements Ferry Road to assist with a single vehicle collision on May 9 at 10:10 p.m. The driver was found to be operating on a suspended driver's license and had three prior convictions for driving under suspension. He was arrested and transported to the Berkeley County Detention Center.

COLLISIONS, TICKETS, WARNINGS

During the first half of May, 12 collisions were reported on Daniel Island and the Clements Ferry Road area. Sixteen citations were issued, and eight warnings were written.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

If you have information about a crime, call Charleston County Consolidated Dispatch at 843-743-7200 and ask for the on-duty central detective at the Charleston Police Department, or call Crime Stoppers of the Lowcountry at 843-554-1111.

FRAUD GIFT CARDS

On May 11, an officer was flagged down by a complainant who lives on River Landing Drive. The victim said that he had received an email stating that his Amazon account had been hacked. When he called the number provided in the email, he was advised that an Acer computer system had been illegally purchased with his credentials and was then directed to an individual named "Logan Wood" from a 206 area code. Wood instructed him to purchase gift cards in order to process the reimbursement. Between May 10-11, the victim purchased multiple gift cards at Target, Harris Teeter, Publix, Home Depot, and Lowes totaling $9,600 and provided front and back photos of the gift cards to Wood.

While an officer was present, Wood called the complainant again and said he needed more gift cards to process the refund. The case has been turned over to the department's white collar crime division and is pending.

Philip Simmons High School senior Devin Casper decided to

and are essentially shelters for the elderly that have been rejected by their families.

Philip Simmons student donates birthday money to nursing home residents in India

Devin said he could not have pulled off the event without his grandfather, Sam Verma, who was thrilled to be a part of his grandson's thoughtfulness. "In today's world, a small act of kindness matters. We each could do one thing today that could make a difference for someone...Once Devin expressed his desire to celebrate his birthday with the residents of the old age home, it was my duty to do it in such a way that Devin as well as others will learn from this event to do the similar things. Together we planned and we talked to each resident individually as to what will make them happy."

Most of the gifts were very inexpensive, some only costing $1. In addition to the gifts, Devin and his grandparents planned a dinner that included a birthday cake to complete the celebration.

Devin watched the festivities over Zoom and saw firsthand how his selflessness brought pleasure to others. "It was incredible to see... The gifts that they chose and how much joy those gifts brought them, no matter how simple they were, was so cool to see. I really couldn't have asked Sheela said Devin's act of kindness showed how one person can make a big difference even from thousands of miles away. "My Dad said that after the newspaper articles [about the celebration] in India, the home received many donations to help them. They thought if this 18-year-old could do this from America, they could help as well."

Devin had advice for anyone thinking about assisting those in need. "I'd tell them, while it may not seem like it beforehand, helping others in need gives you a feeling of happiness that is superior to anything you get from doing something for just yourself."

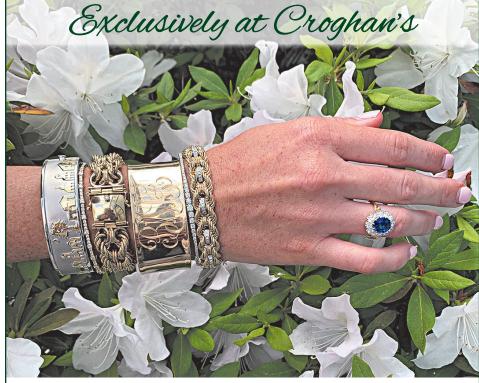

Even though Devin is heading to Clemson this fall, he will continue to support others. "My plan is to do this every year from now on. My hope with doing that is to inspire others to also do something to help."

Rules of engagement in the blame game

management moment

DOUG DICKERSON

John Killinger tells a story about the manager of a minor league baseball team who was so disgusted with his center fielder's performance that he ordered him to the dugout and assumed the position himself.

The first ball that came into center field took a bad hop and hit the manager in the mouth. The next one was a high fly ball, which he lost in the glare of the sun and it bounced off his forehead. The third was a hard line drive that he charged with outstretched arms; unfortunately, it flew between his hands and smacked his eye. Furious, he ran back to the dugout, grabbed the center fielder by the uniform, and shouted, "You idiot! You've got center field so messed up that even I can't do a thing with it!"

The coach in the story reminds us of the type of culture we live in. The blame game is easy to play and in the end, it serves no meaningful purpose. But as a leader, if you want to grow, move your organization forward, and create a culture of excellence it's going to require a different mindset in order to pull it off. Here are my five rules of the blame game that can help you navigate your way forward:

BEGIN WITH YOURSELF
In a "blame others first" culture this is where you are set apart as a leader. The tendency is to find someone to be the "fall guy" when things go south, but the leader steps up and takes responsibility. When you shoulder the responsibility as the leader you demonstrate that you are with and for your team not just in the good times but also when the chips are down. A good leader takes personal responsibility for his organization.

OOK FOR SOLUTIONS Once responsibility has been taken it's the time to move beyond whom to blame and work on solutions. This can be as simple as diagnosing a poor communication problem or perhaps something more complex. The point being; don't dwell too long on who messed up but rather channel your energies on what to do next.

TTACK BAD ATTITUDES

In order to coalesce team members around a new culture of excellence and move past a blame game mentality, you must address bad attitudes. "Your attitude, not your aptitude, will determine your altitude," stated Zig Ziglar. Bad attitudes will ground your organization and will be the single greatest challenge to your leadership. The work of your team will be a reflection of their attitudes. Attack bad attitudes, keep yours positive and change your culture.

ANAGE MISTAKES WISELY The way you manage mistakes can pay great dividends but it all depends on how you handle it. Rather than demoralizing the offender with a wrong response, why not use the opportunity to do something constructive? As a leader, how you handle the mistakes of others speaks volumes about what's most important to you. Those who blame belittle. Be a leader who encourages and turns the mistakes into something positive.

EXAMINE MOTIVES Understanding the blame game begins with identifying the motives for blaming others. Possibilities might include professional jealousy, subtle expressions of bullying, the deflection of one's own insecurities, etc. By examining the motives of those caught in playing the blame game card you can learn a lot about the inner workings of your organizational dynamics and patterns. As a leader, you need to have a handle on what is taking place in order to correct it.

Playing the blame game is too easy. Leading up is hard. Your leadership will rise when you rise up and do the right thing. If you want a better way forward then stop with the blame game.

City July 4 celebration to feature free concert, fireworks

Charlie T. RiverDog joined Mayor Tecklenburg last week at The Charleston Place to announce the City's Free Fourth of July concert and fireworks to be held July 2 at Joseph P. Riley, Jr. Park. The Charleston Place is providing financial support.

STAFF REPORT

Earlier this week Charleston Mayor John Tecklenburg announced the details of the city of Charleston's upcoming free celebration in honor of Independence Day weekend.

The free community event will take place at the Joseph P. Riley, Jr. Park home of the Charleston RiverDogs - the evening of July 2. The celebration will feature a concert by the Charleston Symphony followed by a fireworks display, supported by The Charleston Place.

The event is free to attend, but tickets must be reserved in advance. Tickets are available for citizens to claim at charlestonarts.org.

Babies born May 29 are eligible to receive $529 for college savings

STAFF REPORT

State Treasurer Curtis Loftis kicked off the upcoming National 529 College Savings Day by announcing that South Carolina's Future Scholar 529 College Savings Plan will provide privately-funded $529 grants to every baby born in South Carolina on May 29, 2022.

This year, the PalmettoBaby Grant Program will celebrate a decade of collaborating with hospitals across the Palmetto State to promote the importance of saving for college. On May 29, new PalmettoBaby parents will receive a Future Scholar goody bag which includes information about the state's award-winning 529 college savings plan and a $529 college savings grant.

"The best way to commemorate 529 Day is to remind families of the importance of saving for college. We are proud of the Future Scholar families who celebrate a child's graduation this month, and we welcome the new families who want to begin saving for the future," Treasurer Loftis said. "Together with our hospital partners, we are pleased to highlight the value of 529 plans by jump starting college savings for babies born on 529 Day with the PalmettoBaby grant."

To receive the PalmettoBaby grant, parents of babies born on May 29 must complete the grant application and open a Future Scholar account by August 31,

The Future Scholar 529 College Savings Plan offers families a smart and easy way to save for their children's college education expenses with opportunities for taxdeductible contributions from state income taxes, tax-free growth and tax-free distributions for qualified education expenses.

A few weeks ago, a group of men on a mission from the Daniel Island Rotary Club opened a padlocked, climate-controlled storage unit, and stepped inside. In the cool, dark unit, 30,000 yellow rubber ducks packed in trash bins awaited the verdict. Had they survived another year in deep slumber with RFID chips intact so the 16th annual Charleston Duck Race could go on as planned on June 18?

One of the men waved an RFID wand over the trash cans and confirmed the ducks were traceable and ready to compete.

RFID tags are a type of tracking system using radio frequency to search, identify and communicate with items. They are essentially smart labels and the secret sauce of the Charleston Duck Race – allowing each duck to be registered to a specific person so race organizers can track the ducks and award $5,000 or $10,000 in cash prizes to the owners of the ducks that cross the finish line first

A GOOD REASON FOR GIVING

RFID tags are just one part of a race that has won the hearts of local residents, raised needed funds for good causes and fueled the passions of an inventive and committed group of Rotarians who pull off the race each year. Since the beginning, the race has raised more than $2 million for local charities focused on hunger and nutrition, building better communities, health and wellness, scholarships, building better shelter and childhood literacy. And each year, the race involves about 80-100 percent of the Rotary Club's members to make it work. This year, 89 volunteers are involved, according to race planners - with more help needed from the community at

In 2021, the majority of funds went to food support, a critical need during the pandemic. Organizations that benefitted were ECCO, East Cooper Meals on Wheels, Feeding of the Multitudes, Berkeley Seniors, Inc., Feed the Need, Neighbors Together, HALOS, SHIFA Clinic and the Cainhoy Community Center.

THE DUCK STORY BEGAN IN 2007

In 2007, a rotarian named Bart Jackson, a real estate agent on Daniel Island, suggested a fundraising concept that has been widely adopted and successful. "He was the godfather of this race," said Bill Stevens, former rotary president and duck race chair, who has been involved in the race since its inception. "We had tried other things but Bart came up with the duck idea and had the will to make it happen."

Jackson sourced 10,000 hand-numbered ducks from China. On race day, in a true spectacle, the ducks were dropped off the Wando River bridge timed to river currents and in between thunderstorms while a group of volunteers corralled the ducks in the river using pool noodles to prevent errant ducks from floating to Portugal."It was quite the sight with all of us wading in the river with lightning overhead," said Chad Vail, another past president of the Rotary who has been involved with the race since he joined. "We fine-tuned our procedures over the years and as the race gained momentum, we've been able to make significant community investments."

The Rotary has a formal committee that vets all nonprofit applicants each year to ensure that their mission is aligned with the Rotary's. The recipients are announced long before the race to encourage support from the community. Visit bit.ly/3NqCWXh to see this year's recipients who will be invited to a club meeting soon after the race this year to receive their checks.

"It's a sensational engine to raise needed funds that are invested back into the community," Vail said, "And event day is about kids and family with family centered activities, just like an old-fashioned community fair. We all come together to celebrate what's possible when we join in giving."

CHANGES OVER THE YEARS

The Daniel Island News ■ May 26 - June 1, 2022

While the Wando River created the perfect spectacular race location, as Daniel Island grew and traffic increased, the duck race became a distraction for motorists crossing the Wando on the day of the race.

And the police determined the race needed to find a new home. Undeterred, the Rotary duck organizers found another location -Smythe Park – and set about reframing the event. Then in 2020, the race was canceled due to COVID-19. In 2021, with COVID still looming, the venue changed again – to local restaurant New Realm Brewing.

"The race event has changed over the years and I commend the Rotary members for rolling with the changes," said Rob Fowler, chief meteorologist at WCBD

News 2, who has been the master of ceremonies a number of times. "One year fire hoses were used to move the ducks along in Smythe [Lake] towards the finish line and a few jumped out and found themselves on land. And then there was COVID in 2020. Despite these changes, the race has tran-In 2008, the Rotary Club Duck Race ducks were dropped from the James B. Edwards Bridge into the Wando scended place and time because it's such a cool event. Everyone loves being a part of this race to support local charities."

This year, the lake at Guggenheim Park, at the epicenter of the town, will be the race location with games and attractions for kids and families. The event will start at 3 p.m. on June 18 with the race as the big finale at

After that, a Rotary committee, headed by George Jucha, with great care, will scoop up the ducks, dry them off and put them back in storage for another year's deep slumber. "It's a labor of love for us to do this every year and gives us great joy. Service above self is what Rotary is all

George Roberts, this year's duck chair, put it simply. "We do this because we care most about raising funds for local nonprofits and building community good will at the same time.'

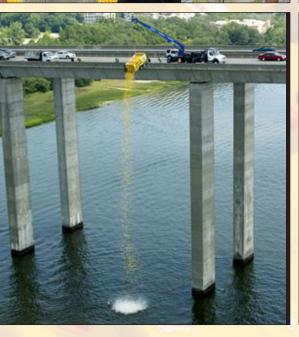

Stevens agreed, "While there will be prizes for the donors holding the winning ducks, the real winners are the thousands of people served by the charities and service projects that receive all the profits from this annual event.'

Over the past 15 years, the duck race has donated more than $2 million to community causes and served 100,000 people.

"We'd go back to that location in a hot second because it was such a spectacle," said Bill Thielfoldt, who has been involved in the race each year since he joined 12 years ago. "But we understand the perspective of the police and public

As race planners look to the future and pass the baton, the race may continue to change as new people join Rotary and have new ideas for building good will and giving back. Mary Jo Romeo, current Rotary president has no doubt the race will remain a Daniel Island institution. "Things change in the world, fundraising approaches are refined, Daniel Island will change and grow. But one thing is certain, Rotary will always be a force in the community for good and the duck race will continue to bring us together."

DI Rotary Club springs into action in April

The Rotary Club of Daniel Island ushered in the peak season of spring with a slew of interesting guest speakers. The following is a synopsis of what the month of April

On April 6, Mike Seekings was the guest speaker. Seekings discussed the issue of flooding in downtown Charleston and the Lower Battery Seawall repair project, which has just entered Phase 3 and signed a contract for $22 million. He discussed the U.S. Army Corps Engineers' proposal and the pros and cons associated with the project.

Later in the month, on April 13, the club invited Kenya Dunn as guest speaker. Dunn worked for T-Mobile for 10 years in Augusta, where she is originally from, and she has two children. Her oldest son is at Coastal Carolina University and her daughter studies at Howard University. Dunn moved to South Carolina and worked for the T-Mobile call center. Her background is in leadership development and quality management. The call service center she led quickly rose to T-Mobile's top-ranked call center in the nation. Six months into her new position, Dunn had the responsibility of running the call center by herself as the former director took a promotion in Seattle. Under Dunn's leadership, the call center on Daniel Island thrived. In 2011, she became the director of the call center. In 2015 she moved back to Georgia to work in the retail division, helping T-Mobile take a 1% market share from Verizon & AT&T. Shortly after, she was promoted to vice president of retail and managed roughly 10,000 people!

Kenya is now the COO for Lifetagger.

On April 20, the club welcomed Nate McGaughey as guest speaker, controller of Nucor Steel Berkeley. McGaughey studied accounting and finance and graduated from Southern Indiana in Evansville, Indiana. McGaughey's relationship with Nucor started as a child, as his father worked for Nucor in Crawfordsville, Indiana. McGaughey appreciates what Nucor has helped provide his family while growing up and now for his current family.

Before moving to South Carolina, Mc-Gaughey worked in the products division in Nashville. Nucor is the largest steel products producer in the United States and the largest recycler in North America. Nucor has over 300 operating locations and 30,000 teammates in North America. Nucor had $56 billion in 2021 revenue ranking high on the Forbes Fortune 500 list. Nucor Steel Berkeley, constructed in 1995, sits on an 8,000-acre plant site, including a 6,000-acre conservation easement with 975 employees. McGaughey gave valuable information about the markets they serve, an overview of the global steel industry, particularly the United States, and what's in store for Nucor's future.

At the end of April, the club co-sponsored the Daniel Island Speaker Series featuring the Birds of Prey.

HORSE-STORIC RUN

Irons Horse girls' track and field repeats as state champs; Watson joins record books

PHILIP M. BOWMAN

sports@thedanielislandnews.com

On a day the Philip Simmons High School girls' track and field team celebrated a state championship, standout senior sprinter NaJhyrai Watson savored one of the all-time, top-individual performances in the history of the South Carolina High School League.

The Iron Horses repeated as Class AA state champions May 20 with a 129-80 victory over Greer Middle College at Lower Richland High School.

Watson, making her fourth and final performance at the championships, became only the 15th girl in state history to win four gold medals. She swept the sprint events, winning the 100-, 200- and 400-meter dashes, while running the second leg of the winning 4x100meter relay team.

"I didn't know that," Watson said of her place in Palmetto State high school track history. "I'm excited. I hoped to do it last year, but we had some bad luck in the relay. This year, it was my goal. But I didn't know if I could do it."

Watson was overwhelming in the 100-meter dash, winning by a half second with a time of 11.74. It was more of the same in the 200-meter dash as she won by more than a second with a clocking of 24.33

Watson is the most recent girl from the Lowcountry to win four gold medals at a state meet, since Fort Dorchester High School standout Jasmine Quinn went 4-for-4 in 2013 and again in 2014. Quinn won gold medals in the 100 and 200 dashes, the 100 hurdles and long jump both years. Quinn, who now goes by Jasmine Camacho-Quinn to reflect her Puerto Rican heritage, won the gold medal in the 100-meter hurdles representing Puerto Rico in the 2020 Tokyo Olympics.

Just how dominant was Watson at the state meet? With 32.5 points, she outscored all but eight of the 30 teams that competed.

Watson led the Iron Horses to the state title last spring with three gold medals. She concluded her career with nine gold medals.

"Obviously, I knew it would come to an end," Watson said of her prep career. "But I didn't know it would come this quickly."

The Iron Horses tallied 24 points in the pole vault as Madison Jent claimed gold by clearing 11-6. Reagan Roush also cleared 11-6 to win silver, while Avery Harbaugh claimed bronze.

Phoebe Crogan and Samantha Watson finished 2-3, respectively in the 800-meter run, while DeAndra Brown won silver in the 100-meter hurdles and bronze in the triple jump. The 4x800-meter relay team claimed a silver medal.

PS BOYS TRACK & FIELD

Greer Middle College denied the Iron Horse boys' bid for a second straight state title with a 92-87.4 conquest of PSHS.

Freshman Pierce Walker claimed gold in the 1.600-meter run and finished fourth in the 3,200 to lead the Iron Horses.

The Iron Horses claimed two silvers and a bronze in the three relay events to account for 22 points.Luke Roberts (800 meter), Bryce Kinloch (high jump) and Abram Wright (dis-

BE TRACK & FIELD

On May 21, the Class AAA state meet was contested at Lower Richland High School, and the Bishop England High School girls' team finished second behind Seneca by a 90-62 margin. The Bishop England boys finished in 17th place well behind state champ Wren and runner-up Seneca. Hope-Elaine Stowell led the Bishops with a victory in the javelin. She claimed the gold medal with a heave of 123-2. The Bishops also claimed silver medals in both the 4x800 and 4x400-meter relays.

Emma Hamrick finished second in the high jump and Maggie Long claimed bronze in the long jump.

In the boys' meet, the Bishops' Justin Hafner scored 16 of the team's 17 points. He claimed a state championship in the 1,600 with a time of 4:24.93 and a bronze in the

They struggled the first day and were supreme on Day 2.

That combination cost Bishop England High School dearly during the boys Class AAA State Golf Championship, which was contested May 16-17 at Bulls Bay Country Club.

Oceanside Collegiate Academy took a 12shot lead over Bishop England after the first day, and then held off a ferocious Bishop England rally to win the title, 587-589.

"It was a close one, a tough one to lose," Bishop England coach Jeff Burton said. "We just tossed too many shots the first day. We were up to the challenge on Day 2. We closed fast. We just ran out of real estate."

The Bishops' Sam McMillan won individual medalist honors with rounds of 71 and 70 over the 6.680-vard course to finish at a 141 total. Luke Walmet finished third, two strokes behind McMillan. Daniel Donato tied for fifth place, carding a two-day score of 150. All three golfers will return next year.

The Bishop England High School golf team finished runner-up to Oceanside Collegiate Academy at the Class AAA State Golf Championship.

"I can assure you, as we left the property at Bulls Bay, they were talking about 2023," Burton said. "Our top three golfers return. So does Oceanside's."

Matthew Teegardin and Max Rottermund also competed for BE.

Oceanside won the title thanks to the 12shot lead after the first day. The Landsharks carded a 287 to BE's 299. The Bishops rebounded on the second day to shoot 290 as a team, while Oceanside Collegiate Academy recorded 300.

"I felt if we could get to a tie, we would be in good shape," Burton said. "We had a lot of momentum and they were reeling. A lot of it was match-play mentality.

"I felt if we could have picked up seven or eight shots on the front nine, it would get interesting," Burton added. "Oceanside was tight down the stretch, but was able to stabilize things at the end."

It was the fifth time in the program's history that BE finished as state runner-up in golf. The Bishops have won eight state titles, including back-to-back in 2018-19.

One of the highlights of the Bishops' season was their second-place finish in the prestigious 47th annual Southern Cross 7th at Palmetto Golf Club.

Porter-Gaud held off Bishop England for a three-shot victory. Oceanside Collegiate was third at the Southern Cross, which features the best of the best in the Palmetto State.

"It was our best finish ever," Burton said. "We did a great job this year. I'm proud of them."

PHILIP SIMMONS GOLF

Philip Simmons High School finished in fourth place out of 12 teams at the Class AA state championship, which was held May 16-17 at the Cheraw State Park Golf Course.

Christ Church won the tourney for a record ninth straight year. It was the Cavaliers' 20th state title overall, which is another state record. Christ Church's two-day total was 588. Central claimed second with a score of 613 while St. Joseph's was third at 618. The Iron Horses carded a 632 for fourth place.

The Iron Horses who competed included: Grayson Davis, Stephen Ethridge, Hudson Hatch, Shannon Campbell and Ryan Propes.

Iron Horse tennis underclassmen have strong showing at individual state championships

PHILIP M. BOWMAN

sports@thedanielislandnews.com

The Philip Simmons High School boys' tennis team showed it had a great collection of talent by recently winning the Class AA state team championship.

The Iron Horse boys also proved they had individual players with strong skill sets as well, as junior Zade Hyatt, sophomore Josh Lively and junior Henry Hyden fared well at the individual Class AAA-AA-A state championships, which were held May 16-17 at the Dr. Eddie Floyd Tennis Center in Florence.

All three players reached the second day of competition to earn all-state honors.

"There were 12 players playing that second day, and we had three of them," Philip Simmons coach Richard Schulz said. "There were 32 players to begin the tournament and we were the only school to have three players earn all-state."

Lively had the best finish, reaching the semifinals.

"He has unlimited potential," Schulz said of Lively. "He is intelligent, humble and a little naïve. He doesn't realize how good he Schulz described Hyden as being goaloriented. "He works hard to get better. He sets lofty goals and reaches them."

Hyden lost to eventual state champ Noah Johnson of Wren in the third round.

Hyatt is the only one of the talented trio who doesn't play tennis year round.

"He's our MVP," Schulz said. "He's not our most valuable player; he's our most valuable person."

BE, PS SOCCER

The Bishop England and Philip Simmons soccer programs had successful seasons this spring, and it is reflected by the all-state teams recently announced by the state coaches association.

Philip Simmons had six players receive accolades, while BE had five.

The Iron Horse boys, who went 15-2, including 6-0 in Region 6-AA, had three players make the prestigious squad: Tucker Sprofera, Riley Beard and Ty'Sun Mack-Davis.

The Iron Horse girls finished with an 11-7-1 record, including 6-0 in Region 6-AA. Iron Horse selections include Jen Szlosek, Stephanie Kirk and Claire Esse.

The BE boys had two players earn allstate: Easton Khouri and Zander Mullin. The Bishop boys posted an 11-7 record, including 6-4 in the region, which was good for third place.

The Bishop England girls posted a 12-6 record, and finished in second place in Region 8-AAA with a 7-3 record. Lauren Berrigan, Lucy Bora and Isabella DeMarco were the Bishops' all-state selections.

The BE boys had two players earn allstate: Easton Khouri and Zander Mullin. The Bishop boys posted an 11-7 record, including 6-4 in the region, which was good for third place.

PHILIP SIMMONS BASEBALL

The Philip Simmons baseball team's bid for a state championship came up a little short as the Iron Horses were eliminated by Andrew Jackson May 18 in the Class AA Lower State Championship Series.

The Iron Horses traveled to Kershaw, needing two victories over Andrew Jackson in the double-elimination tourney to advance to the State Championship Series.

Andrew Jackson won the first game with an 8-7 decision in a contest that went nine innings. The game was decided when a Volunteer player was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded for the walk-off extra-innings victory.

May offers a myriad of fish species

fishing trends

May is one of my favorite months to fish. Inshore, nearshore, and offshore species are readily available and hungry. With so many choices, the hardest thing about fishing in May is deciding which species to fish for.

On Sunday, my son, Elliott, and brother, David, decided to do a little nearshore fishing. Brody, the amazing fish-finding and stock-trading dog, was unable to join us due to a previous commitment. However, he told us cobia were abundant near artificial reefs and live bottom ledges. Elliott, David, and I love to eat cobia. So, we made a beeline to a live bottom ledge in 90 feet of water.

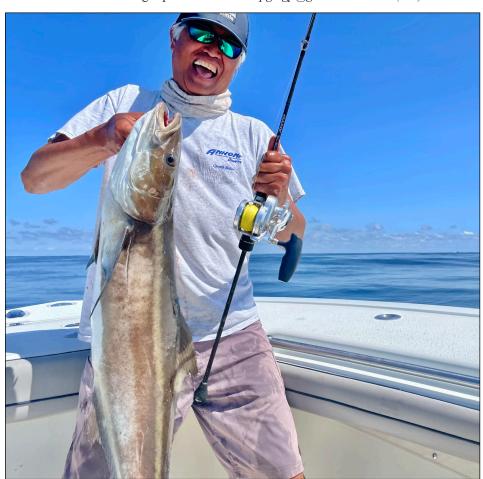

Upon arrival, the depth finder showed schools of baitfish and larger predators on the ledge. We dropped slow pitch jigs to the fish waiting below. Amberjack and American red snapper found the jigs to be irresistible. Red snappers are great table fare. Unfortunately, they are out of season. So, we reluctantly released all of them. After an hour of constant action, our arms were tired. We decided to move to another area. Hopefully, cobia would be there.

After a short run to another ledge in 100 feet of water, we dropped our jigs again. Vermillion snapper ate our jigs regularly. They are delicious and we invited a few home for dinner.

I was thinking about calling Brody on the satellite phone to get some advice on locating cobia. About then, David set the hook on a heavy fish. It was clearly not a vermillion snapper. For a few minutes, the outcome of the fight was in doubt. Eventually, the fish began to tire and grudgingly came to the surface – cobia!

Contact Captain Greg Peralta at capgregp@gmail.com or call (843) 224-0099.

The Haves and the Have Nots

Choose either the auxiliary verb has or have in the sentences below.

- 1. The doubles team, Morris and Williams, (have, has) not played a match all day.
- 2. Margaret and the board (have, has) terminated your contract.
- 3. Neither the dogs nor the cat (have, has) been fed yet.

the verb should agree with the subject that follows or or nor. 3. has. With a compound subject that is joined by or or nor, Compound subjects require plural verbs. 2. have. There are two subjects - Margaret and the board. Most collective nouns are considered singular. 1. has. Team is the subject and a collective noun. Answers: Subjects must agree in number with their verbs.

CONGRATS TO LAST'S WEEK'S WINNER: KAREN FEDDER

Fedder is no stranger to winning the Mystery Photo Contest – she's won several times! She is a big fan of the paper and enjoys guessing each week.

You might spot her on the trails of Daniel Island, as that's one of the things she loves about living here.

"I retired and enjoy walking my two dogs around the island," Fedder said.

Congratulations also to Kathie Harvey and Robert Peiffer who correctly answered

Fifteen, Ten, and Five Years Ago in THE DANIEL ISLAND NEWS

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

May 24, 2007

The centerfold featured local resident Anthony Noury and his business, Sea Tow, which he still runs today. Sea Tow can assist with a variety of boating distress calls, including towing for boats that break down, prop disentanglement, pulling out boats that have been grounded, jump starting stalled engines, and providing fuel for those who have run out of gas.

Non-members may also utilize the company, but the costs will be higher. One of the "good" parts of the job, according to Noury, is that the Sea Tow team gets to save the day when boaters get into trouble on the water.

Also in the news, an article about the increase in snake sightings. While Daniel Island is home to six different venomous snakes, most snake encounters rarely lead to a venomous bite. Snakes are most active in the spring and early summer.

The centerfold featured gardening tips for the summer. Late May is not too late to plant a summer garden. With a little bit of planning and an afternoon of work, a summer harvest can be reaped long into the fall.

In island news, Delta Pharmacy (which used to be located in the Publix Shopping Center) was targeted by burglars. As a result of the break-in, the City of Charleston Police Department conducted on-site security surveys for businesses interested in identifying possible threats. Business owners were (and still are) encouraged to not only examine things on the inside, but also on the outside. "If your business does not have an alarm, that's a major risk factor," Sgt. Trevor Shelor noted at the time. "We also recommend businesses not leave any cash on the premises...Remember, the potential criminal is not like Tom Cruise from 'Mission Impossible,' but someone with a cinder block."

The cover and centerfold featured the popular Charleston Duck Race event. Hosted by The Rotary Club of Daniel Island and a number of other participating Rotary Clubs in the Charleston area, the event had raised more than $1 million over the past 10 years for local beneficiaries and Rotary projects worldwide. "It's an event that is fun for the whole family," said Daniel Island Rotarian Bill Stevens. "Where else can you have this much fun and do this much good for $10?"

In island life photos, May springtime events were captured. There were pictures from the annual bocce bash, the Daniel Island Historical Society meeting, a string concert at Summit Place (now known as Oaks), and a visit from former Rep. Mark Sanford to Laura Alberts for an event and stop at Bishop England High School.
